PROJECTS

Chemi-Resistive Gas Sensor Ink Development | rGO, PVP, SEM, 4-Point Probe

- Fabricated chemi-resistive gas sensor inks using reduced graphene oxide (rGO), PVP K-30, PVP K-90, TX-100, and PVDF at different concentrations, investigating stabilization, drying behavior, and nanoparticle settling.

- Prepared and deposited the inks using controlled cleaning, ultrasonication, UV-Ozone treatment, drop-casting, and thermal drying, followed by SEM characterization to examine film morphology and uniformity.

- Evaluated electrical properties using four-point probe measurements and found PVP K-30 to have higher conductivity, while PVP K-90 produced more selective and crack-free films, indicating different suitability for sensor fabrication methods.
